

Discover your power as Belden's new member of our Operations - Early Career Leadership Program

We are looking for talented, driven and passionate people who aspire to lead others in the Operations & Supply Chain arena and are excited to join an early career program that offers robust hands-on development over a three year duration.

Venlo

Full Time

Master

This is what excites you every day

- Being an active member of our team from day one
- Working on a role rotation basis and having the opportunity to get exposure to our different brands, businesses and technologies. Besides different roles in your base country you will have the chance to work on projects in other EMEA countries.
- Connecting with peers from other Belden functional leadership programs as you participate in a highly interactive and action based learning curriculum.
- Building your knowledge of our core business systems, developing your business acumen, and creating a strong foundation for your operations and leadership skills.
- Receiving individualized feedback throughout the program along with the mentoring support of a leader in Belden

This is you

- You are passionate, enthusiastic and ready to take on a challenge
- You hold a Master degree in Manufacturing, Engineering, Electrical Engineering, Industrial Engineering, Supply Chain or Logistics or similar combined with the aspiration to build a career in a management role
- You demonstrate leadership aptitude with the desire to build a career in Operations
- You made at least two relevant internships, or have less than one year working experience
- You are fluent in English and have a basic level of Dutch and/or German, further languages are advantageous
- You are willing to relocate and are mobile

This is what you're looking for

- Work in an empowering environment that rewards performance and ambition.
- Being a part of a 'glocal' team of all levels of expertise.
- A dynamic workplace that boosts responsibility, mutual trust and flexibility from day one.
- A culture of honest feedback.
- A working environment where everyone inspires each other.
